WELCOME!

Have you ever stopped to think about the momentous role that the "now" is having in the future of children? A new generation is being raised today. Children are being trained and taught today. The next generation is happening now. The next generation is being developed today. This is exciting! Think of the potential for the Kingdom of God! You are with the children, you see God's special design in each one of them and you know that God has a plan for them; He has a future and a hope. What might He do in their lives?!

Knowing that the next generation is happening now is a sobering thought. Galatians 6:7 says, "Do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap." This verse is true and sowing and reaping is real. Do we believe that seeds which are sown, actually turn into a harvest? Do we believe that seeds actually grow into something? The Bible says that they do.

When we plant a physical garden, we plant seeds that will lead to the harvest we want in the future. Depending on what our goal is, we make decisions now that will lead to the outcome we desire. In the same way, the children's future is being developed right now. As we minister to children, we need to make sure that we are not just planting "religious" seeds, but that we are planting spiritual seeds. There is a difference and we want the children to truly know Jesus, not just follow religious guidelines. Jesus said, "It is the Spirit who gives life; the flesh profits nothing. The words that I speak to you are spirit, and they are life." (John 6:63)

So, what kinds of seeds should we be planting as we minister to children? We need to plant the kinds of seeds that will produce what we want the children to become. We should ask, "Do I want to prepare them for this life only or for eternal life forever?" Jesus came to seek and to save the lost. That was His priority and it should be ours as well. The children desperately need to first hear the truth of the gospel, so that they can truly believe on Jesus for salvation. We then have the privilege of disciplining them in their relationship with Jesus, as they learn to abide in Him and fellowship with their Lord, day by day, throughout their lives.

We pray that this conference will help and encourage each one of us as we invest into these precious young lives for the glory of God!

Because of Jesus,
